Celebrity Golf Tournament raises £50,000 for charity

Ten proudly sponsored Cignet Capital Management's celebrity golf tournament in April this year, helping to raise £50,000 for Help for Heroes, the Army Benevolent Fund and the Sports Fund. The event - which was also sponsored by Sky Sports, David Lloyd Resorts, Fortune Magazine, and Jack Barclay Bentley - took place in the beautiful surroundings of Stoke Park in Buckinghamshire.

Stars of the screen and the sports arena were out in force to support the good causes. These included athletics legends Daley Thomson and Denise Lewis, Olympic rower Sir Matthew Pinsent, England rugby player Simon Shaw, swimmer Mark Foster and TV personalities Brendan Cole and Jimmy Tarbuck.

Ten's chief executive officer Andrew Long took part in a team with Cignet adviser Colin Pearce, Ten's resident golf pro Neil Docking, and Mark Foster.

Andrew said: 'I had a great day, and I'm really pleased with how much the event raised for charity. However, the rest of my team put me to shame in the golf stakes - I definitely need to work on my game.'

Ten lifestyle manager and professional golfer Neil Docking commented: 'The golf day was a great experience for everyone involved. It was for a good cause and it was nice to see the celebrities getting involved. I've had the opportunity to play all over the world and I thought Stoke Park was a great course, with great facilities and staff.'
